

IONE A. KOURIDES ZAROULIS

Married to Charles G. Zaroulis, M.D. since 1974 and have four children – Lara, Andrew, Christina and Peter.

I received my B.A. from Wellesley College and M.D. from Harvard University and did further medical training in St. Louis, New York and Boston. I was on the faculty at Harvard Medical School until 1977 when my husband and I moved to New York to join the faculty of Cornell Medical School and Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center.

In 1990 I joined Pfizer in New York City where I have been involved in drug development for the past 19 years in diabetes and endocrinology.

I have had a very varied medical career, including teaching, research, patient care and business.

I am very proud of our children. Lara is a state prosecutor in Jacksonville, Florida and is married to a Navy JAG. Andrew is in finance in New York – energy and infrastructure. He just married Lindsey on May 23rd. Christina graduated from Law school on May 17th. Peter graduated from Tufts in 2008 in International Relations, having spent a year at London School of Economics. He worked for a while at a hedge fund in New York, but is now considering other options.

My father will be 99 years old in July and still lives in the house in which I grew up on Groton Street in Forest Hills Gardens.
